GEMINI 11 FLIGHT STARTS

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Gemini 11 astronauts thundered into orbit today, ending three days of frustrating delay, and began stalking an Agena satellite across the sky at five miles a second. Two lonely explorers speeding through uncharted heavens, Navy Cmdr. Charles Conrad Jr. and Lt. Cmdr. Richard F. Gordon Jr. aimed to rendezvous and link up with the Agena in record time.

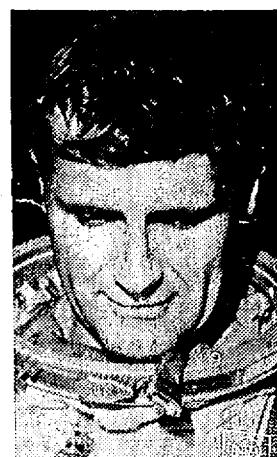

The seasoned pilots, who endured two 11th-hour postponements and a last-minute, quarter-hour delay in these three adventurous days in space, relied on sensitive instruments and their judgment as fliers to seek out the fleeting target. "Eleven is go!" Conrad exclaimed as the booster rocketed him skyward from Cape Kennedy. "You are go for M equal one," the mission control center told the astronauts as their tiny spaceship swept into orbit more than 100 miles above the earth. This was the designation for Gemini 11's plan to rendezvous with the Agena target satellite in the first orbit. "Roger," replied command pilot Conrad. As the great rocket rose skyward, green lights flashed across the boards in the control center in Houston, Tex. "Everything looks good," the control center told the astronauts about half way through the six-minute flight of the Titan 2. "We're right down the middle," the flight dynamics officers reported. The lift-off was only one-half second late. The launch, scrubbed twice last week, ran into a final problem just two minutes before the liftoff of the Atlas-Agena target. Technicians could not seal the spacecraft hatch over command pilot Conrad. They reopened it, then closed it again and finally pronounced it ready for flight. But the countdown had to be pushed back so there was a delay of 16 minutes. The 11th in the Gemini series finally got going at 9:05 a.m. EDT when the Atlas hurled the 26-foot-long Agena into an orbit ranging from 180 to 191 miles, close enough to the 185-mile circle that was planned. "Very good," the astronauts said as they got radio reports on the progress of the target satellite. Ninety-seven minutes later at 10:42 a.m., a Titan 2 barreled into the sky, propelling Gemini 11 into orbit. The Agena flashed over Cape Kennedy at the end of the first trip around the world and the chase was on. Conrad, taking advice from his guidance system and computer, fired Gemini 11's thrusters as the craft

End Search For Sodus Twp. Man

Believed Lost In Plane Crash

A search of Lake St. Clair for a Sodus township man whose private plane was seen plunging into the lake on Sept. 3 has been discontinued.

Mrs. Ernest Smith, 2671 Pipestone was notified by U.S. Coast Guards at Detroit that an unsuccessful hunt for her husband was closed Friday.

Witnesses reported seeing a plane crash into Lake St. Clair about 10 miles off shore. The plane's number, as observed by the witnesses, established the plane as Smith's, who had taken off from Detroit Municipal airport for Buffalo, N. Y.

Mrs. Smith, who was in Colorado visiting relatives at the time, returned home after the accident. The couple's son, Jerry, came here from California.

Smith, 58, a long-time employee of Clark Equipment Co., worked at the Clark Construction Machinery division near his home. He maintained a private landing strip at his home near the junction of Pipestone road and Nickerson avenue in Sodus township.

Chamber's Steak Fry Scheduled

Expect 500 At Event Wednesday

The Twin Cities Area Chamber of Commerce will hold its sixth annual steak fry Wednesday at Riverview park. The event will begin at 3 p.m. with the steaks going on the fire at 5:30 p.m., according to Dick Seagrave, steak fry chairman.

The steak fry is an opportunity for chamber members and their guests to gather in an informal atmosphere and enjoy a one-pound T-bone steak with all the trimmings. The price is $3 per person.

The Jack Footie Dixieland band will provide entertainment for the event, said Seagrave. A record attendance of 500 is expected for the event and anyone who has not yet made a reservation may do so by calling the chamber offices at WA 5-0044 or YU 3-4191.

Beagle valued at $75. He died just two days after neighbor Stahl warned of poisonings. A second Beagle being kept for a friend was rushed in convulsions to the veterinarian in time to be saved as was the Holt's house dog of mixed breed.

TWO LEFT The next to be poisoned was the German Shepherd, found curled under a rabbit hutch last April. The fifth dog poisoned and the third to die, was the English setter, valued at $100. This dog was the favorite of her husband, Mrs. Holt said. The Holts have two young German Shepherds left and eventually hope to breed them, which was the reason they moved to the Lemon Creek road home.

IN NEW BUFFALO

Talk Of Rights March Was Apparently Hoax

NEW BUFFALO — Judging from rumors spreading through the city a civil rights march supposedly scheduled for Sept. 4 was a hoax perpetrated by a group of railroad workers.

A restaurant owner, who asked that his name and that of his business not be mentioned, said that he received a phoned request supposedly from the Student Non-violent Coordinating Committee to reserve 40 seats for Sept. 4. He said that nobody showed up on that date or since and added that he heard the march was a hoax.

The rumor has it that a group of railroad workers thought up the joke one night at a local tavern and then spread stories of a march and made reservations at the one restaurant and possibly others.

The restaurant owner said he took it seriously and carried in extra tables and chairs. City officials and community leaders also took it seriously and called a citizens meeting Aug. 30. There it was decided the march should be ignored and pleas for peace and order were made.

It is not known just who the railroad workers were or whether they are local residents or not.

Two Dogs Are Beaten To Death

Hit With Wrench, Smashed On Post

Berrien sheriff's deputies are investigating the brutal killing of two dogs. The dogs were reportedly beaten with a tire wrench, and one smashed against a post several times.

The owner, James E. Townsend, 33, of 2202 Berg avenue, Benton township, was arrested yesterday on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor as he pulled into the driveway of his home. Deputy Dave Hanner was at the Townsend home to investigate reports from neighbors that two hunting dogs had been beaten to death.

Witnesses told Hanner a man went into the dog kennel and began beating two of the dogs with a tire iron. About an hour later, they said, the man returned. One of the dogs was apparently still alive, they said, so the man began beating it against a clothesline post.

But Totals Could Be Inflated

Premier Sees 'Final Victory'

SAIGON, South Viet. Nam (AP) — Premier Nguyen Cao Ky said today that 80 per cent of South Viet Nam's voters had turned out for the national elections which spelled "the beginning of the end for the Communists."

"We now have the conditions for final victory," the premier said at a gala diplomatic and press conference at which all members of the ruling military council appeared.

The official gale ignored evidence that some provincial and district officials — under pressure from Saigon — had reported some padded totals. At one point, information officials in the central voting office in Saigon had a provincial voting total with an obvious error of more than one million votes.

The new assembly of 117 representatives elected to write a new constitution will meet Sept. 26 and Ky said they should finish their work "as soon as possible."

The new assembly, as announced by Maj. Gen. Nguyen Duc Thang, who was in charge of the elections, included 22 teachers, 20 military men, 18 civil servants, 17 provincial councillors, 15 professional people, eight farmers, three judges and three others.

Only one woman, of 18 female candidates, was successful. The average age of the assembly is 40.

Gen. Thang said that on election day there were 5,289,652 eligible voters. Of this number 4,274,812 went to the polls.

Thang admitted that among the voters some cast blank ballots of protest, but said the number was far smaller than the 15 per cent who cast defaced ballots in the 1965 provincial elections. He gave no figure however.

BRIGHT SIGHT

Ky, resplendent in a black tailored uniform, lavender neck scarf and six rows of bright ribbons on his chest, said the elections were "a victory of the entire free world against the efforts of evil forces to enslave mankind."

"Never before have the Communists tried as hard to sabotage anything as they did yesterday," Ky said. "Never before have they failed as yesterday."

Says U.S. Satellite Is Spying

Taking Pictures Over Soviet Union

NEW YORK (AP) — A new maneuverable superspy satellite is taking photos of Soviet military bases and dropping the film packages back to the United States, the Daily News said today.

In a copyright article from Cape Kennedy, Fla., the paper said the satellite may have a television system which can be monitored from the ground.

The News said the satellite is an improved version of a type which has been photographing Soviet and Chinese military bases for more than five years — the so-called Samos program.

It said the new satellite, first launched on July 29 from Vandenberg Air Force Base in California, has a camera so powerful it can photograph objects as small as several feet across from 100 miles up. The film packages are dropped on signal from the earth and caught in nets by planes near Hawaii, or fished from the ocean if the planes miss.

The satellite also is equipped with rockets which can change its orbit on ground signal, the News said.

'Negroes Don't Like Violence'

Griffin Tells NAACP Its Hour Nears

By Associated Press

Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., told a National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) gathering in Lansing Sunday that the vast majority of Negroes are "disillusioned and disappointed by the antics of the violent fringe."

Apparently referring to riotous demonstrations proclaiming "Black Power," Griffin said Negroes "are ready to follow wise leadership" and "this may be the NAACP's greatest hour."

Campaigning for re-election, Griffin also told the Lansing NAACP chapter:

"One after another, the responsible leaders among the Negro community are declaring their separation from the false spokesmen who foment riot, rebellion and ruin — and are renewing their allegiance to NAACP and other mature organizations."

Former Gov. G. Mennen Williams, Griffin's Democratic challenger, remained at home in Grose Pointe Farms over the weekend, continuing his recuperation from a kidney stone operation performed Aug. 19.

NO APPEARANCES The six-times former governor is reported by associates to be taking daily walks, but he has booked no campaign appearances for this week.

Following Williams' operation, physicians said he would remain in a hospital 10 days or so (he stayed 11) and that he would have to remain home "another couple of weeks" before resuming his campaign.

In his Lansing speech and in a statement released in Detroit Saturday, Griffin was critical of the Johnson Administration's antipoverty program.

He termed it "woefully inadequate" the administration's job in training and job-placement programs, adding:

"Given a bit of incentive, your local business can not only do a bang-up job of testing, job-training and counseling — but can provide the actual jobs to fit the job-seeker."

"Just offer your local businessman the incentive and you will see this logjam broken. But leave it in the hands of the bureaucrats and it will get bigger and bigger."

He did not explain the type incentive he proposed.

DISMANTLING? The senator said that when Mayor Jerome Cavanagh of Detroit went to the White House last week in search of more antipoverty funds, President

Garnishment Conference

Credit, the lending of money, goods or services, is a refinement of civilization whose record traces back to prehistoric times, and in the United States the widespread application of consumer credit or installment buying represents the difference between prosperity and depression.

If, as every economist says, the American standard of living would shrivel noticeably were consumer credit to be eliminated, admittedly there are some perils and abuses in this system of exchange.

Like a gun handed to the wrong person or aimed in the wrong direction, installment buying can be as great a curse to some individuals as it is an all round benefit to the economy at large.

Some times this misuse mounts to tragic results. A few months ago a young factory worker in Detroit committed suicide. His high take home pay to the contrary, the fellow was so enmeshed in running from one creditor to the next that his mind snapped and he decided the only way out was to go sled length.

This and less dramatic though equally involved situations have stirred some labor unions to demand that the state legislatures perform some drastic surgery on the garnishment laws.

Last week a Michigan House judiciary subcommittee held a public hearing in Benton Harbor to obtain local views on the subject.

Garnishment and its allied remedy, attachment, were designed years ago with good purposes in mind.

The function of garnishment is to enable a creditor to get a valid claim which his debtor holds against a third party. Attachment is to prevent a debtor from secreting his assets, with special emphasis on removing them from the court's territorial jurisdiction.

Applied indiscriminately, garnishment works a hardship in one direction and creates a nuisance in another.

A wage earner who has his pay check tied up by a creditor, in effect, is plunged ever deeper into a financial morass and his employer has his payroll accounts snarled in another piece of red tape.

Some idea of the latter's impact was shown at the hearing by one of Clark Equipment Company's attorney. Last year, he informed the subcommittee, his firm had 1,700 garnishments to process.

Unlike many employers, Clark does not discharge a worker who is garnished, but where this all too common practice prevails the hardship on the individual is compounded far beyond his pre-existent debt level.

The hearing's byplay between the witnesses and the subcommittee members suggested that the reason for the discharge is the cost to the employer for processing the garnishment and that if this cost were taxed against the garnishment process, then the rationale for discharge would disappear.

This covers only part of the ground in those discharge cases.

Some employers have an inbred horror of the entire legal process and it's been our observation that they look upon a garnishment notice as the equivalent of the employee committing a criminal act. This starchy attitude strikes us as being out of tune with the times, but it exists nonetheless.

Another reason for discharge carries more merit than the first two.

A man on the production line can be sued and garnished daily without affecting his company's public image in the slightest. Yet if that company's salesmen or its upper management people run around town piling bills and not paying them, the company's image definitely will suffer. Somewhat similarly, if supervisory personnel are in constant personal difficulty, their value in directing their subordinates is open to serious question.

In delicate areas of that nature, discharge is mandatory to maintaining proper interior discipline.

All witnesses agreed that the principal difficulty in this hardship and nuisance situation starts with the imprudent purchase or extension of credit.

This boils the problem down to the question of how to protect that segment of the population which is inherently incapable of managing its money affairs.

The larger cities have Better Business Bureaus which wrestle with this one as best they can, and some of the larger employers use their personnel offices for financial counseling of their employees.

In a mechanical sense, the law itself can stand some amending. Taking the employer out of the cost equation could relieve the discharge burden, and limiting the number of garnishments on a given debt might discourage some reckless selling.

A tighter discipline among merchandisers and credit agencies has been long overdue, and restoring the distinction between a sale and a gamble could be more helpful than anything else.

No Economic Shortcuts

Cause and effect related to a particular problem sometimes are as difficult to determine as the solution to the problem. Not infrequently, what appears to be a cause of a problem is only one of the effects.

For example, a number of officials of the Administration contend that if any program in which the government has a financial and regulatory interest begins to falter, the solution is more aid and more controls.

Thus, the excuse frequently offered to explain why the billions of dollars given Latin countries under the Alliance for Progress program have shown little results is that even these funds are puny compared with the need — they must be greatly increased.

Similarly, the hundreds of billions of dollars expended on foreign aid (ostensibly designed to curb communism) have recruited no new allies for the United States. Jealousies over the dispensation of those funds, however, have resulted in the loss of some potential allies. Always the cry is for more funds and more aid programs.

Raul Prebisch, secretary-general of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development, recently pointed out that despite the billions of dollars in aid given the less developed countries in the last 15 years by the United States and others, the economies of the recipient countries are growing more slowly than they were in the 1950s.

His solutions? More aid, commodity cartels which would give the less developed countries preferential treatment in world markets, and higher tariffs on goods the poorer countries import. In short, more controls over world markets and greater subsidies to underdeveloped countries.

It is possible that one of the troubles with the economies in the poorer countries is that they are now too badly hampered by over-regulation and control, not to mention continued subsidization of inefficient enterprises. Would the aid money not be better spent training the workers and the managers of the underdeveloped lands in the successful ways of business, industry and commerce as exemplified by the free market concept?

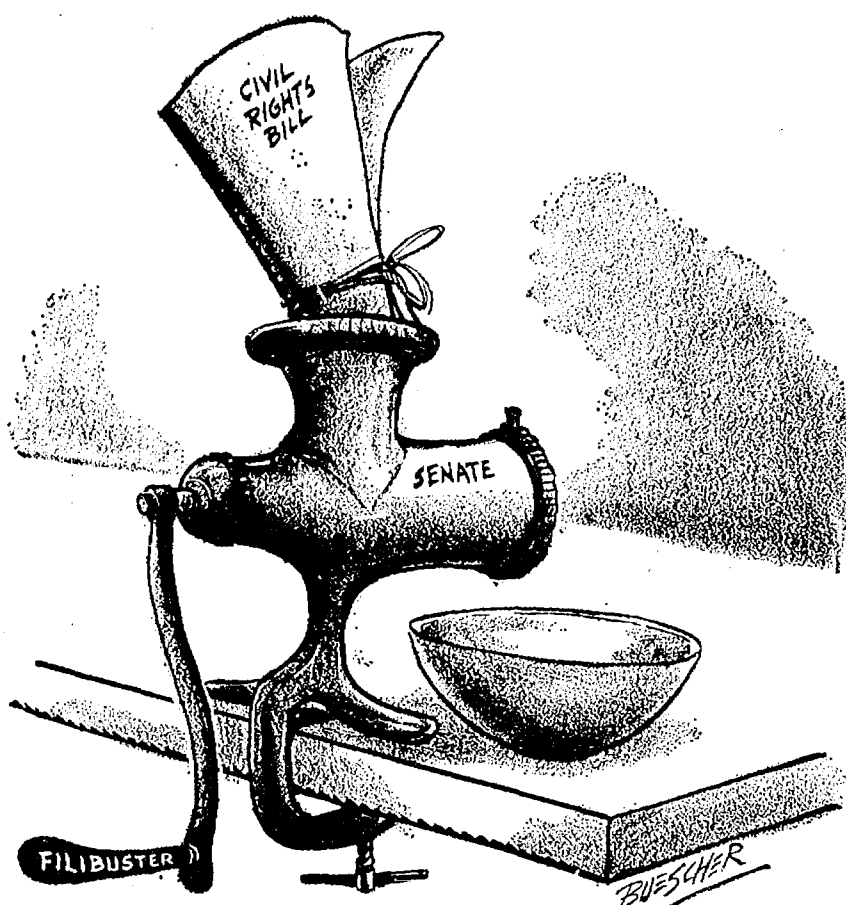

Certainly this approach would be more logical than perpetuating and compounding an economic system of rigid controls and artificial stimuli which all economic statistics indicate has failed in the past.

BRIDGMAN MAPPING NEW SCHOOL PLANS

10 Years Ago—Bridgman is proceeding with plans to build a new school to meet overcrowded classrooms, School Superintendent Walter L. Briney stated today. Development of the building plans was started by the Bridgman school board soon after the August 2 election in which the so-called B-B-S school merger plan was overwhelmingly defeated by Bridgman voters, Supt. Briney said.

Just completed this summer is a complete modernization of the old school plant in Bridgman. New aluminum windows with glare-reducing glass have been installed throughout the building. The corridors and classrooms have received acoustical tile treatment to dampen noise and improve the appearance of the rooms. All classrooms have had new fluorescent fixtures installed.

Asked to define the waters concerned, Hull told reporters it must be remembered that the United States confronted a world movement of force for the purpose of conquest of continents and seas. The discussion was on President Roosevelt's speech last night in which the president bluntly barred vast reaches of the seas to what he called "rattlesnake" raiders carrying the flags of Germany and Italy. Mr. Roosevelt backed up the no trespass order with guns of the United States fleet.

Secretary McNamara says the enemy in Viet Nam indicates renewed zeal. They know about Uncle Sam but not "Uncle!"

Rand Corp. scientists are trying to cook up weapons that will not kill or destroy. Rock 'n' roll might be the answer.

There is hidden economy in not escalating the bombing of North Viet Nam. If we win it will cost us less to rebuild for them.

Rand scientists are considering weapons of "persuasion," such as minor gases. The last time we got anywhere with persuasion we used our No. 1 persuader.

The Soviet is known to be working on mind reading as a weapon. If that gets in general use, everybody will be enemies of everybody.

A suggestion that troops be recruited from the enemy by hypnosis has been discarded. If we can just get them to sleep, that will do.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

One of my favorite Calvin Coolidge stories concerns the evening he was seated next to Alice Longworth at a Washington dinner party. Mrs. Longworth was a famous and brilliant conversationalist and was determined she'd succeed in drawing the taciturn president out of his shell. After several vain assaults, however, she finally exploded. "These formal dinners obviously bore you to death, Mr. President. Why do you attend so many of them?" President Coolidge swallowed a generous slab of beef and remarked, "Well, a man has to eat somewhere."

In the carefree Edwardian era — before World War I — a certain English duke threw money about with such abandon that his baristers finally told him he simply would have to cut down. "For example," volunteered one, "you needn't maintain three pastry cooks in one kitchen." The duke was properly vexed. "Dammit," he thundered, "can't a man have a biscuit if he wants it?"

There's a remarkable character named Alemany, according to Jack Fuller, who compiled these literary notes:

1. Mark Twain wrote a book about what his hero would do when his best friend died (Huck'lll Billy Finn).
2. Sir Walter Scott wrote about the occupation of the Russian farmer (Ivan Hoo).
3. J. D. Salinger wrote what would happen if a husband came home and found his wife in a tub full of whisky (Catch Her in the Rye).
4. And the best-seller of them all tells us what the cow said when her gentleman friend was leaving the pasture ('Bye, Bull).

speaking of YOUR HEALTH

By Lester L. Coleman, M. D.

Is it natural for an elderly person to walk in a peculiar way after a long serious illness? It is the exact nature of the illness rather than "the illness in the elderly" that is responsible for a change in the walking gait.

When a patient has been confined to bed for a long time and when special precautions have not been taken to prevent it, a condition known as foot drop may result.

After a stroke there may be a strange wide dragging of one leg.

Some neurological conditions are associated with peculiarities of gait. Parkinson's disease is sometimes associated with severe rigidity of the body and rapid walking with short strides.

There are many distinctive gaits which can almost positively lead the doctor to a diagnosis.

A sudden sensation of dizziness may make a person walk on a wide base and even produce the reeling appearance of the chronic alcoholic.

In many instances muscle reeducation and exercise may help to reestablish a stable gait.

If a person with a rare blood type needs a transfusion in an emergency is such blood available?

Banked blood for most usual and unusual blood types are available in most large cities. The speed of modern day transportation makes it possible for blood to be shipped within a few hours to almost any part of the country.

There are some very rare

blood types that present a more difficult problem. In a great emergency blood substitutes like plasma and dextran can be used until the exact matching blood is found. In order to save time a world registry of rare blood donors keeps on file the names and address of all people with matching rare types, and it calls on them during these emergencies.

New methods of freezing and preserving blood for long periods of time make it possible to keep a store on hand of the rarest blood.

It is a never ending joy for those of us in the practice of medicine to witness the unselfish donation of blood, common and rare by people who respond to the urgent needs of their fellow men.

Is there any truth to the value of a beefsteak for the immediate treatment of a black eye?

It is a sheer waste to use a thick, juicy, tender beefsteak on a "shiner" when a warm washcloth will do the same. The steak is cold and moist and soothing and acts as a wet dressing.

There now are special enzymes which when taken by mouth shortly after the "smoke of the battle" has disappeared help make the vivid hues recede more rapidly.

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

This extraordinary hand occurred in the Masters Pair event in San Francisco in 1954. The final contract at nearly all tables was four spades.

The results, however, were far from uniform. West led two high diamonds and continued the suit after East had played high-low. At most tables declarer ruffed with the six and East overruffed with the nine.

Afraid to lead a club away from the king (which would have been fatal), the East players generally returned a spade to dummy's king. Declarer then went down two at these tables, eventually losing two club tricks. Dummy's hearts could not be reached for discards.

Several Souths played the hand somewhat differently and succeeded in making four spades. These declarers, recognizing the futility of trumping the third diamond low, ruffed with the king.

They then took the A-Q of spades, cashed the ace of hearts, and excited with a spade. East, on lead with the ten, had to return a heart, permitting declarer to discard two clubs, or else return a club, which declarer could win in dummy with the queen.

To trump the third diamond with the king is clearly the correct play. It offers a legitimate chance to make the contract, whereas trumping low must lead to defeat against proper defense.

Strangely enough, the contract can always be beaten by an exceptional defensive play from East.

At those tables where declarer ruffed the third diamond with the king, the East players could have defeated the contract by undertrumping the king.

By playing a trump instead of taking a discard, these Easts could avoid the end play and eventually defeat the contract.

But no East found this extraordinary method of defense when given the opportunity, and every declarer who ruffed the third diamond high made the contract. Apparently, some defensive plays are easier to find in post-operative analysis than in the heat of battle.

Requests for open occupancy ordinances have been mailed to Twin Cities government leaders by the Benton Harbor branch, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Receiving the requests are Benton township, St. Joseph township and the city of St. Joseph.

Will Branscumbe, NAACP branch president, earlier had requested such an ordinance in Benton Harbor. NAACP officials reported that Branscumbe was urged by Benton Harbor Mayor Wilbert Smith to make similar requests in other areas of the Twin Cities, as well as Benton Harbor.

SEEK ORDINANCES
NAACP officials said the request is for an ordinance similar to one adopted in Ann Arbor. That ordinance was overruled by Michigan Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley, but upheld in a decision by Washtenaw County Circuit Judge James R. Breakley. J. Kelley had overruled the ordinance because he felt the new state constitution provided for a civil rights commission to handle the same matters.

NAACP officials said the Ann Arbor ordinance now is in effect and submitted a copy to St. Joseph Mayor William Rill, St. Joseph Township Supervisor Orvall Benson and Benton Township Supervisor Ray Wilder.

The local request urges all governmental units to "expand their housing opportunities for all the people, regardless of their race, creed, color or national origin, by passing an open occupancy ordinance."

Copies of the letter, dated Friday, were sent to D. Albert Wheeler of Ann Arbor, state NAACP president; Sydney Finley of Chicago, area director of the national NAACP; and G. L. Current, New York City, NAACP national committee of discrimination of housing.

The letter is aimed at all area communities, saying, "A whole community is only the total sum of its parts."

'Racial Balance' For B.H. Schools Pushed

Open occupancy and fair housing ordinances and total integration of schools by the fall of 1967 was proposed by the Benton Harbor branch of the NAACP on a sheet of recommendations handed out at the second meeting of the Community Relations Advisory Board Saturday.

The proposals were distributed by Will Branscumbe, president, and Mrs. Mary DeFoe, secretary of the local NAACP branch.

No discussion of the program was held at the board meeting. Afterwards Mrs. DeFoe explained that integration of schools meant putting a "racial balance" in all schools, shifting some Negroes to white schools and white children to predominantly Negro schools.

Asked for specific examples of segregated schools in Benton Harbor, Mrs. DeFoe said she did not know personally of any schools without any Negroes, but said some had only one or two. "Open occupancy is really the answer to segregated schools. If the housing patterns would change, then there would be Negroes in the neighborhood schools," she said.

The NAACP recommends an open occupancy and fair housing act for Benton Harbor, St. Joseph and the townships of Benton and St. Joseph.

Also urged is a "crash program" for employment to secure jobs immediately, stimulate more on-the-job training and greater use of the Manpower Development Training act.

The proposals include creation of a committee of Negroes to meet regularly with the police and discuss problems of law enforcement.

S. J. BOOK WALK

Jaycees Seek Army To March Saturday

Members of the St. Joseph-Benton Harbor Junior Chamber of Commerce will start recruiting a young army this week to move 26,000 books.

The Jaycees are in charge of the book walk scheduled for 8 a.m. Saturday. About the only physical requirement is the ability to tote several books three blocks—for about four hours.

There will be music, refreshments and prizes to spur the marchers.

The idea of the book walk, first used in Holland, is to get the books in the present St. Joseph public library and take them over to the new Maud Preston Palenske Memorial library in some semblance of order to permit opening of the new facility sooner.

The Jaycees are seeking 400 college and senior high school students for the rain-or-shine assignment.

Top prize will be a transistor radio. During the march, three or four times each hour, a bell will sound and tickets to the State theater or the Starlite or St. Joe Auto theaters will be awarded.

McDonald's mobil unit will serve refreshments.

ROUTE OUTLINED
The route of the marchers, each one bearing a number, will be out the front of the library, down Elm street to State street and then down Market to the new library. The young people will return to the old library via Market and Main streets.

If it rains the Jaycees will wrap books in plastic bags.

While approximately a hundred students have already signed up for the book walk, David Matzen, chairman, said if 400 show up then the job should not take more than four hours.

Matzen's committee includes Frank Harter, refreshments; Charles Barger, prizes and music; Otis Joseph, manpower; Henry Zuilhof, publicity.

BOOK WALK CHIEFS: Three committee chairmen from the St. Joseph-Benton Harbor Junior Chamber of Commerce, who will be in charge of the job of transporting the 26,000 books from the St. Joseph Public library to the new Maud Preston Palenske Memorial library, get ready to tour the new library building prior to making plans for the book walk Saturday. They are from left Frank Harter, refreshments; Henry Zuilhof, publicity; and Otis Joseph, manpower. (Staff Photo)

One School Crossing Unguarded

Benton Township Problem Solved

Benton Harbor school district officials this morning reported that only one school crossing—Territorial road and Crystal avenue—remained unguarded today in Benton township.

Assistant Superintendent Donald G. McAlvey said that principals were notified after the meeting between school district and Benton township officials Friday to hire guards.

"Apparently the principal was unable to find someone to take that crossing, but he probably will have someone there this afternoon," McAlvey said.

POLICE GUARDS

Benton township police were guarding the crossing on Main street at Bard school this morning.

Township and school officials announced Friday that they had reached an agreement on paying the guards and that guards would be on duty at all 10 township crossing Monday morning. Details of the agreement were not disclosed.

In addition to the weekly news filmstrips, participating schools received a monthly "news-in-depth" film on a specific topic. This year they will cover such subjects as Latin America, Viet Nam, and moon exploration.

Another part of this newspaper's visual education program is available to all readers—the weekly News Quiz that appears today on page 7. The entertaining quiz is on recent events throughout the world. It is presented with the cooperation of four area business firms—Ashley Ford sales, the Thrift-Mart, Brown's Pharmacy and Twin City Beauty college.

New Group Approves Resolution

Plans To Study Complaints On Human Relations

By TYRUS KNOY
Staff Writer

The committee of Negroes and whites formed hastily during the rioting in Benton Harbor and Benton township the week of Aug. 28, adopted a resolution Saturday that respect in the police-public relationship is a two-way street.

Holding its second meeting Saturday in Holly's restaurant in downtown Benton Harbor, the group, which had grown to 34 from its original 26 a week earlier, also named itself the "Community Relations Advisory Board" and heard several reports from subcommittees.

The resolution on police-public mutual respect was adopted as an answer to a resolution adopted at the previous meeting charging the policemen of the communities to be respectful to citizens with whom they come in contact. The most recent resolution recognizes that citizens also have a responsibility to be respectful in their relationship with police.

COMPLAINT PROCEDURE
The advisory board also adopted a procedure for accepting and investigating complaints on human relations infractions. The resolution was to the effect that complaints to the board would be accepted only in writing and that the action taken on them would then be to seek information, examine and evaluate evidence, and submit findings to the appropriate officials and authorities.

Both this resolution and the resolution on citizen respect for police were adopted without dissent.

The board also made a move toward seeking official recognition for itself from the four municipalities in the Twin Cities area—Benton Harbor, Benton township, St. Joseph and St. Joseph township. No action was taken, however.

GROUPS REPORT
The various subcommittees appointed at the group's first meeting Sept. 3 reported Saturday.

George Welch, chairman of the committee and also chairman of the job opportunity subcommittee, reported that the Michigan Employment Security commission is now making a study in opportunities and training programs available to young people. He said it was up to the committee to find a way to motivate the young people into entering the training programs.

Rep. Floyd Mattheussen, chairman of the education subcommittee, said a study of vocational needs in Berrien county showed that training in "marketable skills" in public schools is not keeping pace with demands. Mattheussen also said he had tried to convince Benton Harbor school district officials to drop a plan for a second high school because it would lead to segregation.

Oliver Edwards, subcommittee chairman on housing, said an open occupancy policy was needed as well as uniform and fair enforcement of building, electrical and plumbing codes.

SURVEY SOUGHT
Edwards said Negroes couldn't buy homes in white neighborhoods. The lack of code enforcement in Negro neighborhoods is causing houses to deteriorate and drop in value, Edwards said. "Some people never hear from a building inspector until he comes to condemn their house. The inspectors should have come years before and prevented it from slipping to the point that it has to be condemned Edwards said."

George Westfield, chairman of the recreation subcommittee, asked the group to contact the governor's office and ask for a survey of recreational facilities in the community. The group voted to do so.

THEN ROLLER SKATING

Crosses Lake Michigan—And Back—Riding 'Ski-Board'

NEW BUFFALO — Alan Rahn, 17, of South Bend, completed a trip from New Buffalo's Snug Harbor to Chicago and back on a ski-board in 11 hours and 25 minutes Saturday. The youth left New Buffalo on the 112-mile ride at 7:50 a.m. and returned at 7:15 p.m., averaging 11 miles per hour over the water. The 28-foot low boat, the Eva-D, was piloted by Forrest Allender, vice president and general manager of the Delta Wing ski-board corporation of South Bend. Allender's firm supplied the ski-board and financed the trip. Young Rahn ate sandwiches and candy bars and drank lemonade during the ride. He went as far as Burnham Yacht club near McCormick Place in Chicago before turning back. The roughest water he encountered was on the Chicago side of the lake when he had to slow to five miles per hour. Two earlier attempts to cross the lake during late August had to be postponed because of bad weather. Rahn, who is a sophomore at Washington high school in South Bend, had enough energy left to go roller-skating when he returned to New Buffalo. Allender said this is the first time for such an accomplishment on a ski-board.

SMC Board Approves Building

Fourth For Site Near Dowagiac

DOWAGIAC — The Southwestern Michigan college board of trustees today announced it has approved final drawings for a vocational-technical building, the fourth structure that is to be erected on the college's 158-acre campus southeast of Dowagiac. The building will house the Division of Applied Sciences and starting next fall will provide facilities for half of the eight programs in this division. The exterior of the building will be of same appearance as the three buildings already completed. The interior will be on two levels to provide the additional room height needed for the shops that will be equipped with much industrial equipment and a full range of electrical supplies, compressed air, fuel gas and welding gasses.

MORE PROGRAMS — With the opening of this building, SMC will be able to offer two new programs, including industrial technology and auto mechanics. There will be 20 courses in these programs. Trustees hope the college enrollment will continue to be at least 50 per cent in the Division of Applied Sciences.

In addition to these courses, the practical nursing and agribusiness programs will be housed in the new building. An addition to the vocational-technical building is already being planned for construction by 1968. This addition will allow programs in this department to be expanded and will provide space for business education and drafting programs.

SHOP, LABS — This new building will have a machine shop, materials testing lab, welding lab, automotive lab, an agribusiness lecture hall and lab plus a lecture hall and lab for the practical nurse students.

The college will encourage Cass county industries to provide technical assistance and employment for the technical students. "The availability of such programs should make the Cass county area more attractive to new industry," said the college board.

The five were killed Saturday night in the broadside collision of two cars at M-21 and M-13 nine miles west of Flint. Police said one auto, carrying four persons, stopped at a traffic sign, proceeded into the intersection and was rammed by the second car.

Killed were Larimar Sherfield, 47, of Flushing, driver of one car; his wife, Norma, 42; a daughter, Katherine, 12; Lorie Troper, 19, of Flint, a passenger in Sherfield's car; and Robert W. Lozier, 21, of Flint, driver of the second car.

AFL-CIO Leader Is Keynoter

Attacks Romney And Republican Congressmen

By JIM DONAHUE
South Haven Bureau

SOUTH HAVEN — In a fiery, off-the-cuff talk to an estimated 150 United Auto Workers delegates, AFL-CIO boss August (Gus) Scholle last night blasted the state's highest ranking Republican officers and accused Michigan daily newspapers of failing "to tell the people the truth."

The white-haired, bushy-browed president of Michigan's largest union was the keynote speaker for a United Auto Workers Union - financed leadership training school scheduled to continue through Friday at Fideiman's resort.

Scholle leveled salvos at Michigan's Republican Gov. George Romney and two Republican members of Congress, U.S. Rep. Edward Hutchinson and Sen. Robert Griffin. All are seeking re-election in November.

In his remarks, Scholle told union members that "gorgeous George Romney's record stinks about labor," quoted Romney as calling the AFL-CIO "a disservice," and accused the governor of standing "fair and square on both sides of every issue" that has come before the legislature.

'ANY SUBJECT' He claimed that Romney has "lied continuously" and has made opposite and contradictory statements about "any subject you can name."

Also Hutchinson has stood 1,000 per cent against everything that was ever tried," Scholle said. "He and Griffin are just alike."

He also accused Michigan Republicans of taking secret handouts from the John Birch society.

Scholle charged that although Romney publicly denounces the John Birch society, one of the society's leading members has contributed as much as $10,000 to the Republican party in Michigan.

"And yet it is peculiar that with all of this contradiction, not one of the 50 daily newspapers in this state has tried to document these inconsistencies," the union boss said.

'LIKE GERMANY' "The same thing was true in Germany during the rise of Hitler. I am not comparing Romney with the Nazis but I am comparing the newspapers with those that existed in Nazi Germany. They are failing in their moral obligation to tell their people the truth."

Scholle went on to say that he felt it was the duty of the union leaders to "bring these facts and figures to the public."

In another tone, Scholle said he openly supported Democratic gubernatorial candidate Zolton Sereno and G. Mennen Williams, the party choice to oppose Sen. Griffin.

Scholle made his political remarks while attempting to build an argument for union interest in subjects beyond the basic "wages, hours and working conditions" for its members.

"We are living in a more intricate and complicated society," Scholle explained.

DROPS HINT He said he felt it was the responsibility of organized labor to be an effective force in politics, international affairs, civil rights and other events that may affect the nation's working force.

Scholle also dropped a few hints about the fight now brewing between Detroit auto industries and labor. He said inflation is being caused by one segment of our economy knowing exceedingly excess profits annually . . . big corporations.

"Maybe in the future we will all become smart enough to get out of the jungle warfare of collective bargaining," Scholle remarked. "Unfortunately strikes hurt a large number of people. Why isn't there an attitude of bargaining (among corporation leaders) on a more profound basis?" he asked.

Scholle received a standing ovation at the conclusion of his talk.

$126 MISSING

Quiz Attendant About Report Of Robbery

A 17-year-old service station attendant who was working his first night shift, told Berrien sheriff's deputies a .38 caliber revolver was held at his head last night as two men emptied the station's cash register.

Deputies said the young attendant will be given a lie detector test in connection with his account of the robbery.

The attendant, Sam Keith, 965 Paw Paw avenue, said two men with stocking masks robbed the station of about $126. Keith said he was alone at the station, Fairway Gulf service, M-139 and Fair avenue, when the men came in. Both were armed, he said, and one held the gun at his head as they demanded the money.

Keith said he emptied the station's cash register for the two men and was then ordered into a back room as they left. He said he then ran back out and noticed a car with three men in it pulling away.

BLOCKADE SET UP An area-wide blockade netted a car answering the description given by Keith, but the three men in the car were released after Keith said they were not involved.

Keith told Sgt. Murvin Merrill, Cpl. Irwin Davis and Deputy Eugene Eklund he had been working at the station about two months, but this was his first night shift. Most of the money, he added, was in bills, but there was also about $10 in quarters.

Six persons were injured in Benton township traffic mishaps over the weekend. None was hospitalized.

Bob Dale Corzine, 21, of 1270 Maynard drive, Benton township, reported that he was struck by a car as he walked on a private drive near his home. The driver fled from the scene.

Corzine said he did not know the driver of the car. He sustained bruises in the mishap but declined medical treatment, according to Benton township police.

Four persons were treated at Mercy hospital for apparently minor injuries and released, following a two-car collision at Britain avenue and M-139 Sunday afternoon.

Drivers of the cars were Dannie Lee Larry, 39, of 1248 Broadway, Benton Harbor, and Nellie West, 30, of 1319 Monroe street, Benton Harbor.

Larry was uninjured. Mrs. West and three passengers in the Larry car were treated at Mercy hospital for injuries ranging from cuts and bruises to complaints of pain. All were released.

They were Rose Sloan, 36, of 630½ Thresher avenue, Benton Harbor; Roosevelt Roberts, 35, of 842 East Main street, Benton Harbor; and Franklin Roberts, 26, of Chicago.

DRIVER TICKETED — Larry was ticketed for failure to yield the right-of-way by Township Patrolman Robert Shembarger.

Georgia Johnson, 41, of Sodus, complained of pain following a Sunday morning traffic accident in the 1100 block of East Main street in Benton township.

She was a passenger in a car driven by Hubert Washington, 69, of 344 Ohio street, Benton Harbor, when their vehicle collided with a car driven by the Rev. W.E. Ellis, 74, of 1515 East Main street, Benton township. No ticket was issued, township police said.

DISCHARGED — Benton Harbor — Mrs. Floyd Lomax, 577 Broadway; Mrs. Roy Newton, 2138 Irving drive.
